CAPEZIO HISTORY

The Icon of Dance™

Salvatore Capezio was born on April 13, 1871, in Muro Lucano, Italy. In 1887, at the age of seventeen, he opened his shop near the old Metropolitan Opera House in New York City. The sign above his door read: "The Theatrical & Historical Shoemaker."

He began his business by repairing theatrical shoes for the Met. On the day he created an emergency pair of shoes for Jean De Reszke, Salvatore quickly made the transition from cobbler to shoemaker. He discovered dance shoes, pointe shoes in particular, to be a challenging balance between delicate construction and complex engineering. In turn, his customers discovered that few shoemakers were as determined as Capezio to take on that challenge.

Soon the shop became a meeting place for dancers who would stop by to discuss their needs and pick up a pair of his shoes. One dancer in particular, Angelina Passone, a graduate of La Scala, lingered over the discussion of her shoes and later became his wife.

As his popularity grew, dancers from around the world made it a point to visit. In fact, Anna Pavlova purchased Capezio® pointe shoes for herself and her entire company during her first tour of the United States in 1910. Her generous praise of his work ensured Salvatore's success.

Eventually, he entrusted his superior shoemaking techniques to his family. They joined him in the business and the exceptional reputation of Capezio® continued to spread. By the 1930s Capezio products were dancing across Broadway in the Ziegfeld Follies and in dozens of other musicals. In 1941, Claire McCardell showed the Capezio® long-sole ballet shoe with her fashion collection.

The enthusiastic response provoked Lord & Taylor, Neiman Marcus and other major stores to purchase and promote Capezio® footwear. This trend became so strong that in 1949 Capezio® made the cover of Vogue. In 1952, Capezio® received the Coty Award, fashion's highest accolade.

An eye for innovative products and the camaraderie he shared with dancers were the key to the success of Capezio®. In this spirit, The Capezio® Dance Award was established in 1952 to honor those who make a long-standing, significant contribution to dance. The Capezio® Foundation was established in 1953 to promote and recognise ongoing achievements in dance.

Plenty of the world's greatest performers have recognised Capezio® as the only way to dance: Anna Pavlova, Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly, Sammy Davis Jr., Charles "Honi" Coles, Alicia Alonso, Bob Fosse, Mick Jagger, Liza Minelli, Gregory Hines, Tommy Tune, Ann Reinking, Debbie Allen, Ben Vereen, Charo, Merrill Ashley, Ashley Tuttle, Rob Marshall, Fatima, Savion Glover, Brian Friedman, Madonna, Gwen Stefani, Justin Timberlake and Britney Spears.

Although the business is radically different today, third and fourth generation family members resolutely continue Salvatore's legacy of craft, innovation and commitment.

With prevalent industry use of computerisation and robotics, Capezio® Special Make-up Department still hand crafts footwear for an eclectic mix of performers. Some noteworthy past and present casts include The Lion King, Memphis, Billy Elliot, Promises, Promises, The Addams Family, La Cage Aux Folles, Chicago, Mamma Mia, the Rockettes, Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey Circus and Disney.

Capezio® products have been featured in television and film productions such as So You Think You Can Dance, Dancing with the Stars, MTV's Made, Burlesque, Black Swan, Center Stage, The Company and Chicago.

The dedication of Capezio® to providing dancers with technologically advanced, quality tools for their art continues to inspire innovations.

Capezio® proudly introduced revolutionary footwear to the industry with the Dansneaker®, footUndeez®, tap shoes with Tele Tone® taps and the Rayow system, the Pedini® styles, the acclaimed Fizzion™ and several favorites made with PowerPoint Construction®. Capezio® regards dance as an art form, a lifestyle and an attitude. Capezio® is more committed to dance now more than ever.

FOOTWEAR

ANATOMY OF A POINTE SHOE

As elegant as dancing on pointe may appear, it is an athletic talent which requires strength as well as grace. The shoes involved are truly considered to be part of the foot and a continuation of the leg line. It absolutely must fit properly to provide the support dancing on pointe requires. In attempting to achieve a correct fit, dancers should consider these critical elements of design. To create a shoe, all the fabric, leather and other components need to be shaped on a form.

Last—A last is designed to create that shape by replicating the form of a dancer's foot. Every style, size and width requires its own last.

Box—The sturdy compartment for a dancer's toes which provides the support standing on pointe requires.

Side Wings—Side wings are an extension of the box and provide lateral support.

Vamp—The vamp is the section of the shoe "upper" measured from the platform back to and including the binding. A longer vamp can help draw the foot closer to the shank for more support on pointe, so that the foot doesn't overextend.

Throat—The throat is the open area located between side seams at the center front of the shoe. It gives shape to the upper which accentuates a dancer's arch.

Drawstring—The drawstring, encased in the binding, snugs the upper to the foot.

Binding—The binding finishes the edge of the upper.

Platform—The platform is the flat end of the box which allows the dancer to stand on pointe.

Crown—The crown is the vertical height between the vamp and the sole.

Pleats—Pleats occur where the fabric folds into the sole and are located on the underside of the box.

Stay—The stay is the fabric that covers the seam in the back of the shoe at the dancer's heel.

Side Quarters—The side quarters are the sections of satin from the side seams to the back of the stay.

Sole—Made of either buffed or scored leather to provide traction, the sole is internally stitched to the upper.

Shank—Created from leatherboard or redboard, the shank is the backbone of a pointe shoe. It is located under the socklining and provides support. A dancer's strength and ability determine shank preference.

Sewing on Ribbons

1. Fold down the seam of the shoe toward the insole.
2. Ribbons must be stitched exactly at the angle where the fold meets at each side of the shoe.
3. Ribbons should slant slightly forward so they lie flat over the instep.
4. Be sure that ribbons are sewn underneath the binding and drawstrings of the shoe.
5. Repeat steps one through four for the other shoe.

Fitting a Pointe Shoe

Remember you have more than just two feet to consider. You also have two points of view—the dancer's preference and those of the dance teacher. While selecting the correct shoe, take your time. The only way to fit a pointe shoe is carefully. Since confronting two different sized feet is common, always apply the following procedure to BOTH feet.

1. Study the dancer's feet in a flat, standing position. Note the general shape, width and length of each foot. Keep in mind that just because a dancer has a square foot doesn't mean he/she will need a square shoe, nor will a tapered foot definitely require a tapered shoe.
2. Select a pointe shoe that best resembles the shape of the dancer's foot. The dancer must help decide this after trying on the shoes. Be sure to follow the fitting process each shoe style requires.
3. Once the dancer makes a selection, place the box of the pointe shoe between the palms of your hands. Gently apply pressure to soften the box. Do this for each shoe.
4. Slip the shoe onto the dancer's foot. Using a crisscross motion, lightly pull the drawstring BY BOTH ENDS and tie a loose knot. Note the overall fit of the shoe. It should fit like a glove. Allow no excessive pressure or room for growing.
5. To help determine the length, have the dancer demi-plié in a parallel position. This is the longest the feet will ever be in the shoes. The dancer's toes should just be touching the end of the box without being curled or pushed back. If correct, there will be a slight pinch of fabric while the foot is on pointe which disappears in a flat position. When a dancer is on pointe, his/her foot contracts. This is why it is imperative that the shoe must be snug when the foot is flat on the ground.
6. To help determine the width, make sure that the edges of the foot, including the large and small toe joints, are pressing slightly against the edge of the shoe. The dancer should be able to feel all five toes flat with some pressure. Try various widths until this is accomplished. Confirm the width by having the dancer put one foot on pointe and apply pressure. If correct, the foot will not slip and be properly supported. The shoe must support the dancer's foot. Any slipping or movement inside the shoe could leave the foot unsupported and vulnerable to injury.
7. While on pointe, proper support for the bones of the foot is crucial. We suggest the teacher supervise and approve all shoe selections. Depending on the dancer's age, pointe shoes may have to be checked for proper fit at six month intervals.

These simple steps will help you create a perfect fitting. Also be aware your dancer does not have to stand on full pointe. If a dancer insists on full pointe, the result may be some slippage at the heel during the transition from flat foot to full pointe. This is due to the lack of ribbons and it has no impact on a correct, overall fit.

FITTING A BALLET SHOE

Fitting a Ballet Slipper

Ballet began as an art form during the reign of Louis XIV. Although interpretations of ballet have evolved into various new dance disciplines, including modern dance and lyrical, it is still the place to start for all serious dancers. Ballet teaches exact form and technique.

It builds strength and develops poise. The ballet slipper is one of a dancer's most significant tools. It provides support and comfort. It also allows the dancer to feel the floor, making the fit of a ballet slipper extremely important. To achieve correct fit, follow these guidelines:

Remember you have more than just two feet to consider. You also have two points of view — the dancer's preference and those of the dance teacher. Confronting two different sized feet is common as well. Always apply the following procedures to both feet.

1. Make sure the dancer is wearing tights while trying the slippers on.
2. Place the slipper over the toes and gently slide it over the heel.
3. Ask the dancer to stand flat. Make sure the toes do not curl or overlap. If they do, you must go to the next size or width.

4. Crisscross the drawstring and pull gently so the slipper conforms to the foot. It must fit like a second skin and must not allow for growing room. However, stretching sometimes will occur with use.
5. Ask the dancer to point his or her foot. The back of the slipper should stay on the heel, and there should be no gapping in the width of the slipper.
6. If one slipper fits better than the other, and there is no left or right slipper, try switching the slippers.
7. Experiment with another size or width to be sure the slipper fits properly.

There should be little or no room at the toe. A ballet slipper that is too large may cause a dancer to curl his/her toes in an effort to keep the slipper on while dancing. Improperly fitted slippers also make it more difficult for the dancer to learn technique. A dancer's toes must reach the front of the slipper or he or she cannot feel the floor and articulate the foot to pointe.

The pleats of the slipper are designed to be the same length as dancer's toes. This enables them to fan their toes for balance and is important in positions like demi pointe. A loosely fitted slipper may place the toes behind the pleats, which renders them ineffective.

Sewing on Elastic

The elastic should be positioned high on the instep to ensure a good fit at the heel.

1. Fold down the heel of the slipper until it is flat against the socklining.
2. Place a pencil mark where the fold creases closest to the binding.
3. Stitch only one side of the elastic onto the binding right below the drawstring. Be careful not to sew the elastic over the drawstring.

4. Put the slipper on the dancer and gently pull the elastic strap over the instep where it is the most comfortable.
5. Place a pencil mark where the elastic meets the binding.
6. Stitch the elastic below the drawstring.
7. Repeat steps one through six for the other slipper.

Capezio pointe shoes, handcrafted in the USA, are part of a long-lasting tradition dating back to 1887. Capezio learned how to make the best dance shoes by listening to dancers. Capezio designers and shoemakers still honour that tradition, continually creating according to dancers' requests.

Colours: Available in any custom colour

A Special Make-Up (SMU) pointe shoe is a completely customised, made-to-order shoe. Capezio® proudly offers SMU pointe shoes customised to an individual dancer's specifications.

Dancers may request modifications to virtually every aspect of the shoe including shank strength, height of the vamp, side and heel, ¼ sizing, box strength, fabric, colour, etc.

Developing an SMU may take several fittings and the dancer assumes financial responsibility for the process. Variations of up to ⅛" are considered accurate. SMU shoes cannot be returned or cancelled.

Installing Heel & Toe Taps • Included in tap boxes are soundboards, tacks, metal taps and screws

1. Align soundboard with the sole of shoe, both toe and heel, and tack down with small hammer using the included tacks.
2. Align tap over soundboard, lining up the pre-drilled holes, and screw in screws through both the tap and soundboard into the sole of shoe. Ensure that the screws are sunk right through the tap as loose screws can damage flooring.
3. Scuff the taps to prevent slipping.

LAUREN RHODES

The Face Of Capezio 2011 – The winner's story...

In the summer of 2010 we launched a Europe-wide search for a dancer to star as the Face Of Capezio for 2011. The three finalists were invited to London to meet and perform in front of our judging panel. We were looking for someone who exuded a passion for Capezio and 18 year old Lauren Rhodes from Windsor in the UK stole the show, winning £500 of Capezio dancewear and an exclusive photo shoot. Lauren, whose biggest inspiration is Darcy Bussell, studied classical ballet, jazz and contemporary at Elmhurst School For Dance in Birmingham. She entered the competition for her sister, who encouraged her to put her name forward and told her she would win.

Quality guarantee to retailers!

Any Capezio product with a defect in craftsmanship or material that is returned by a retail customer will be replaced or credit given at invoiced price.
